Water Ruins Grazing Lands

It's rare to see a horse foraging in standing water as if it were a water buffalo, but in southwest Lehi, rising Utah Lake water and ground water has turned grazing fields into ponds. The flooding is creating problems for both animals and humans in the north county area near the Saratoga Resort. Many home owners are surrounding their houses with dirt barracades in anticipation of further water difficulties. Several homes and fields were flooded last year, and those waters never receded. This year, however, worse flooding is expected. With that eventuality comes the likelihood of additional lands slipping underwater and more animals donning scuba gear for meals.

night in eastern France and workers in the south torched a building and setup roadblocks today to protest President Francois Mitterrand's plan to lay off 200,000 workers in unprofitable state industries.

Police said the steel-dependent northeastern area returned to calm after daybreak today. Officials reported 15 people were injured, one seriously, in the town of Longwy near the Luxembourg border when police used teargas to break up a demonstration.

Anti-Nuclear Group Evicted

GREENHAM COMMON, England (UPI) — Anti-nuclear women protesters evicted from makeshift camps around the Greenham cruise missile base huddled at campfires on public land today, refusing to end their 2 1/2-year vigil.

The destruction of their "peace camp" outside the main gate and five smaller camps around the British air base, 50 miles west of London, was a serious blow to the protest against the deployment of U.S.-built cruise missiles at the base.

Steak and what?

Langostino: a seafood that tastes like tiny lobster. And the Sizzler's serving it in the half-shell with a buttery sauce sprinkled with parsley and a hint of seasoned breadcrumbs. It shares the platter with a rich juicy steak, a baked potato or french fries and Sizzler toast.
